Mr. Reddy and his wife, Anjini, who is a physician at the Medical College of Georgia, have a daughter Sudha and a son Arvind, both postgraduates from Emory University. The Reddy's are blessed with five grandchildren.

Mr. Jefferson B. A. Knox

The Knox Foundation

Founding Member

Jefferson B. A. Knox

The Knox Foundation became Million Dollar Roundtable Members of the National Tocqueville Society with $1.5 million in donations to United Way of the CSRA. These major property and cash donations resulted in the creation of the Peter S. Knox Community Service Center, a permanent home for local charities. The Knox Foundation has been a longtime United Way supporter and founding member of The Tocqueville Society of the CSRA.

Peter S. Knox, Jr., Peter S. Knox III, and Boone A. Knox were founding members of the Knox Foundation in 1981. The current director of the Foundation is Jeff Knox. The Knox Foundation continues a long history of caring and dedication to the Augusta area through their annual support of more than 60 charitable organizations. Major beneficiaries have included United Way, Sacred Heart Cultural Center, National Science Center's Fort Discovery, Fore! Augusta, Augusta Technical Institute Foundation, and the Augusta Museum of History.

The Knox Foundation philosophy is to support philanthropic efforts that reflect significant community involvement and to support those nonprofit organizations and community groups that operate within the geographic area in which they live and conduct business.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Morris III and Family

Founding Member

William S. Morris III

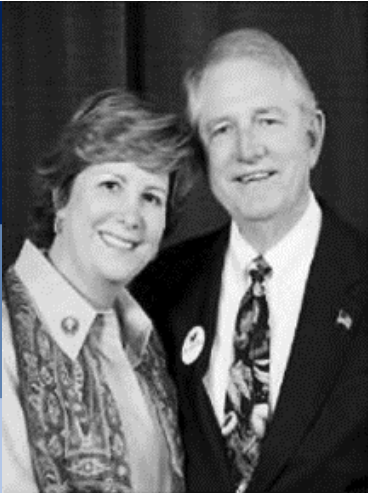

The Morris Family continues a long tradition of outstanding support of the Augusta community through their generous giving to United Way. For ten consecutive years, the Morrises sponsored the Tocqueville founding endowment, the largest single gift in the history of our local United Way. The Morris' Tocqueville gift has helped to raise significant new dollars by elevating the standard of leadership giving for the entire community.

Billy Morris is Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Morris Communications Company, LLC headquartered in Augusta, Georgia. Morris Communications publishes 26 daily newspapers, 10 non-daily newspapers, and 17 shoppers throughout the country.
